Excerpt: . . . with the want of rain, the rapid and abundant growth of plants and animals, the overpowering heat of day and the dews of night, and the jungle or the desert. To have the means of describing the different regions of the earth more particularly, the teacher should proceed with a series of object lessons on their productions. Thus, the lion, elephant, camel, tiger, wolf, bear, hyena, kangaroo, buffalo, reindeer, dog, sloth, serpent, whale, shark, eagle, vulture, ostrich, etc. , are, for geographical purposes, so many types. So in the vegetable world are the palm, olive, the breadfruit, the vine, the cotton-plant, the tea-plant, the coffee-plant, the sugarcane, rice, maize, cinnamon, cedar, mahogany, and the like. Children should be encouraged to make collections of such things as can be used in these lessons. It is the custom in many schools to make exchanges of products between states or countries, and the old-fashioned product chart is not only an ornament to the schoolroom but also a means of cultivating an interest in this too often dry and uninteresting subject. So with respect to man and his habits would be a series on the articles of food, clothing and building. During this course of instruction the only maps used are blackboard sketches or sandtable sketches and pictures--pictures of objects such as have been alluded to, and pictures of scenes typical of countries. The map of Arabia for the primary school should be a desert scene, exhibiting the...
