Winning The Minds is a thought-provoking analysis rooted in impressive on-the-ground research. A valuable read. - Graham Allison, Founding Dean of the Harvard Kennedy School and Director of the Belfer Center at Harvard University The Yemeni intelligence officer was yelling at me now, his moustache bristling with rage as he showered me with flecks of spit. Enta muhim ma a il jehuddi? Enta muhim?! I tried to translate his words in my head, the fear paralyzing my brain as I begged for a translator. This only seemed to infuriate him even more, as up until this point we had been speaking in Arabic. Muhim. Important. Jehuddi. Jewish. He was asking me if I was important with the Jews. He thought I was Jewish. Another spate of insults and spit followed, and all I caught was Yisrael. He was implying I was a spy for Israel. I gasped as the significance of this accusation hit me. The Yemeni intelligence officers thought they had caught an Israeli spy. If I couldn t convince him otherwise, I would soon find myself handcuffed naked to a chair while they tortured me for information I didn t have. How had I ended up here? Less than a year ago I was sitting on the 46th floor of a building in midtown Manhattan, part of the indistinguishable group of young college grads working in finance, and now I was seconds away from disappearing into a Yemeni prison. What turn of events, what decisions, had led me to this moment? Having left his job as a hedge fund analyst in New York s financial district to study counter-terrorism at Harvard, Francisco Martin-Rayó s...
